Hinton City Fire Department Teams Up With State Farm and the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA) to Promote the Importance of Working Smoke Alarms

HINTON W.Va. (Hinton News) – The Hinton City Fire Department is teaming up with State Farm and the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA) to promote Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 6-12, and this year’s theme, “Smoke alarms: Make them work for you.,” which aims to better educate the public about the critical importance of working smoke alarms. According to NFPA, working smoke alarms reduce the risk of dying in a fire by more than half (54%).

“Smoke alarms alert people in time to escape a home fire safely, but they have to be working in order to protect people,” said Lorraine Carli, vice president of Outreach and Advocacy at NFPA. “This year’s Fire Prevention Week campaign highlights simple but critical steps people can take to ensure that the smoke alarms in their homes are installed, tested, and maintained properly.”

The majority of U.S. home fire deaths occur in homes with no smoke alarms or no working smoke alarms.

In coordination with NFPA, the Hinton City Fire Department and local State Farm agent Regina Gwinn Eckleare encouraging all residents to actively support this year’s Fire Prevention Week campaign by testing all smoke alarms in the home, making sure they’re installed in all needed locations, and replacing them when they are 10 years old. In addition, Eckle recently donated a toolkit of Fire Prevention Week resources to the Hinton City fire department which includes activities and information for children and adults, providing age-appropriate messages about smoke alarms and other home fire safety and prevention resources.

“Helping people manage the risks of everyday life is a fundamental part of our mission,” said Apsara Sorensen, assistant vice president of Corporate Responsibility at State Farm. “Through our collaboration with NFPA and local fire departments, we are actively working towards increasing awareness about fire prevention.”

The Hinton City Fire Department shared key messages for this year’s Fire Prevention Week theme, “Smoke alarms: Make them work for you.”

Install smoke alarms in every bedroom, outside each separate sleeping area (like a hallway), and on each level (including the basement) of the home.

Make sure smoke alarms meet the needs of all family members, including those with sensory or physical disabilities.

Test smoke alarms at least once a month by pushing the test button.

Replace all smoke alarms when they are 10 years old or don’t respond when tested.

Fire Prevention Week is celebrated throughout North America every October and is the oldest U.S. public health observance on record. For more than 100 years, Fire Prevention Week has worked to educate people the risk of home fires and ways to minimize them. Local fire departments, schools, and community organizations play a key role in bringing Fire Prevention Week to life in their communities each year and spreading basic but critical fire safety messages.

Hinton Hope Foundation and Local Restaurants Partner for Hurricane Relief

HINTON, W.Va. (Hinton News) - The Hinton Hope Foundation launched a new initiative, “Dine Out for Hurricane Victims,” in collaboration with several local restaurants to raise funds for hurricane relief efforts. From Oct. 21 through Oct. 26, participating restaurants donated a percentage of their sales to support victims of recent hurricanes.

Proceeds from the weeklong event were donated to the United Cajun Navy, a volunteer organization that provides disaster relief and support in hurricane-affected areas.

Participating restaurants included:

Aziza Pizza & Subs Dairy Queen (Hinton location)

Kirk’s Restaurant El Azteca Mexican Restaurant

Each establishment contributed a portion of its sales during normal business hours throughout the designated days. Customers could support the cause simply by dining at any of these local spots, knowing that their meal would help provide relief to those impacted by devastating storms.

For more information about the initiative or participating restaurants, contact the Hinton Hope Foundation on Facebook.

Buckets and Badges: Law Enforcement and Firefighters Unite for Charity

HINTON W.Va. (Hinton News) - On a chilly November night, some of Summers County’s finest emergency responders met on the basketball court for a battle of the badges. Deemed Hose Draggers (firefighters) versus Donut Eaters (police), participants from area volunteer fire departments and local branches of law enforcement battled it out to raise money for the Shop with a Cop program. This program gives Christmas gifts to kids who might not otherwise have any.

Entry was free but donations were accepted with Hinton Hope Foundation matching donations dollar for dollar up to $750. Additionally, Safe and Sound Security donated $1000. In all, over $3000 was raised for this amazing program.

Many laughs were shared during the night including when, at half-time, the police brought out DUI simulation goggles and let both sides try to make a shot while wearing them. While nobody succeeded, it was a crowd favorite watching the attempts.

The kids in the audience wanted in on the action so Sheriff Faris offered a cash reward to the first youth able to make a shot. Young Mr. Hartwell was the first to take the prize by sinking a basket. To keep up the spirit of the night, the Sheriff offered another cash prize to the next kid to sink a basket. A young girl, whose name we have not been able to confirm at the time of publishing, took that prize and a happier victor has never been seen.

The game itself started out strong for the Hose Draggers with the first scrag of the night, but victory wasn’t to be theirs. The Donut Eaters kept a strong lead all evening that brought them to a sound victory. However, in this game, the kids in the Shop with a Cop program were the real winners.

Also on hand during the night was Summers County EMS. Playing along with the theme of the night, they provided law enforcement rehab, which consisted of donuts and the ambulance stretcher was marked especially for Sheriff Faris. As always, Summers County EMS showed how valuable they are when one of the Hose Draggers got hurt and had to be taken to the hospital for a leg injury.

Despite the injury, it appeared everyone enjoyed the night and the best part was the amount raised for the Shop with a Cop program. There’s been talk this will be a yearly event, which would be wonderful. Here’s to a successful first year of a great event.

Amy Mann, first woman elected as 30th Judicial Circuit Court Judge, takes Oath of Office

SUMMERS COUNTY W.Va. (Hinton News) - The Summers County Court Room was packed with supporters on Dec. 23, as Amy Mann took her Oath of Office as Circuit Court Judge for Summers and Monroe counties.

Mann is the first female elected to the 30th Judicial Circuit and the first from Summers County since 1932. Her swearing in came one day after the tragic death of her husband, Michael Mann, and one day before the 20th birthday of their son, Ferrell.

Friends, family, and community supporters were in attendance, to include her faithful companion and emotional support dog, Maya. After swearing her in, Judge Irons gifted her a handmade gavel that his mother had made for him when he took office.

Mann will officially take office on Jan. 2, 2025.

Summers County Commission Approves Bid for New Kennel Facility

SUMMERS COUNTY W.Va. (Hinton News) - The Summers County Commission has approved a bid to build a new kennel facility to house dogs in the care of the county animal control officer. The bid for $82,000 was submitted by Horizon Structures. Dogs have been held in a temporary kennel facility at the county’s Solid Waste Authority in Hinton. Groundbreaking for the facility is to begin in the spring.

Summers County Humane Society President Cheryl Miller says Horizon is well known for the animal care facilities they construct, they are well thought out and address the needs of dogs and the people who care for them in public facilities. The kennel building is proposed to provide kennels for at least seven dogs, maybe more when dogs are compatible. The facility will offer heating, air conditioning, water, sewer, easily washed and drained concrete floors, a washer/dryer and overall safe and comfortable accommodations while dogs are held in county care prior to going into foster home or adoption situations.

Miller says presently, dogs in the county’s care are held in a temporary shelter facility, “but the goal has always been to build a permanent building designed for this type of use. The present facility is maintained by the county with the assistance of the local humane society. It’s been a long haul getting this project to this point and we are very happy and relieved to see this progress.”

Jacob Perez is the animal control officer in Summers County. He said, “We finally got the bid accepted for a brand new building, and the county is willing to put the resources in to provide electric, septic, add-ons and everything we need to get, so this is going to be great, with a quarantine area, too, so new dogs that come in will be able to avoid contaminating other animals in the facility when they arrive. And, we won’t have some of the mess we presently have in the existing temporary kennels which are very open and messy. This is going to be great for the county and all the volunteers, myself, and the dogs. I’m glad this finally went through.”

Perez says the new facility will be a 14 x 36 foot building. It will be placed on a raised concrete pad, with all the drains from each of the seven kennels connecting on the bottom to a drain to a septic tank making it easier to spray out and keep clean. It will be a well-insulated facility because the winters here are cold. They will also add some fencing so the dogs can go out and run around and have some more exercise. Dogs confined in the present facility require walks on leashes. Much of the walking on leashes is conducted by humane society volunteers.

Advocacy Needed to Preserve Spay and Neuter Funding Assistance

The Federation of Humane Organizations in West Virginia says spay and neutering costs far less than the expense to cover euthanasia to control animal population.

HINTON W.Va. (Hinton News) - Snowy, icy cold weekends haven't put the skids on Summers County Humane Society volunteers navigating the interstates to transport dogs to rescues in northern states. During the coldest and snowiest January in 10 years, the local humane society volunteers have been shuttling dogs from Hinton through snow and icy cold temperatures every other weekend to new forever homes and adoption opportunities through other rescue organizations several states away.

Volunteer drivers from Summers County have transported as many as 11 dogs at a time this month. Dogs who've been in the care of the sheriff's temporary kennel facility, and those who've lived in volunteer foster homes all nurtured, assessed, spayed or neutered, and up to date on all vaccinations prior to departure. These local volunteers meet other volunteers along the way who continue their transport to other states where applicants are more eager to adopt them.

Despite ongoing pleas to spay and neuter, dogs continue to need homes. Keeping the dogs warm and safe has been challenging, and humane society volunteers have somehow kept pace. Eager to help the dogs find love and care in safe, responsible and loving homes, this volunteer effort has continued throughout weeks of inclement weather.

"With temperatures in single digits, we are dedicated to moving the dogs held in the county kennels as quickly as possible," according to humane society board Secretary Christina Cochran. Cochran recruits the drivers within the SCHS (Animal Control and Welfare Project, Inc.).

"Please join me in thanking the volunteers! And, please, spay and neuter your pets!"

The humane society recognizes spay and neuter appointments can be a challenge to both schedule and fund, but grant money isn't available for vouchers until March. With too few veterinarians available to handle the need and demand for the procedures, Cochran recommends dog and cat owners try to schedule appointments, on their own, with veterinarians of your choice in the area. Some veterinarians are now requiring that you and your pet be a client before vouchers are accepted as payment. The new Forever Fixed, Inc. low cost spay and neuter clinic in Mercer County is also now open to schedule appointments for pet owners, but, again, no vouchers are available at this time. Please schedule your appointments as soon as you possibly can.

Humane Society board member Gayle Rancer has been in consultation with the Federation of Humane Organizations (FOHO) in West Virginia to promote advocacy in the county to persuade legislators to strike a sunset clause that could interrupt or derail spay and neuter assistance funds. "This is a serious concern," according to Rancer, who says "Our state representatives and senators need to hear from you to extend funding."

The West Virginia Department of Agriculture's spay and neuter assistance program, WVSNP, is funded by fees paid by dog food companies selling pet food in West Virginia. It is not a tax funded program. Rancer says half of the spay and neuter assistance budget, of nearly a million dollars, is funded in part from fees on pet food sales and the other half from a private foundation.

FOHO President Theresa Bruner says the funding is set to expire in 2027.

"To keep this vital funding in force", she says, "bills are being introduced in the state legislature to strike or eliminate the sunset clause in the present funding bill to allow it to continue. Fees on pet food sales in West Virginia provide $450,000.00 from fees on the nearly $150,000,000.00 in pet food sales this past year and are matched by a private donor." Through this program funding has helped spay 84,000 dogs and cats since 2018 when WVSNP was established. Rancer says, "It's a wonderful program, providing spay and neuter assistance for 84 organizations in 2024."

Summers County is among 54 West Virginia counties benefitting from the WVSPN funding. If you feel spay and neuter funding is critical, please visit the Federation of Humane Organizations in West Virginia at fohovw.org to learn how you can impact the future of spay/neuter assistance funding. March 25 is Spay Neuter Awareness Day at the State Capitol in Charleston. FOHO is asking members of the public to support proposed legislation to remove the sunset provision from WV Code providing funding for WVSNP spay and neuter funding assistance. Support for the legislation can be communicated to the House and Senate via phone, letters and email.

A Peek into Summers County's Past: "Pence's Springs Water"

PENCE SPRINGS W.Va. (Hinton News) - I recently discovered something that I had always thought my Grandfather Bernard Thompson mispronounced just to agitate me, HaHa. He made a habit of doing this such as saying "TaLcoTT", or "Hofanugal" Road in Lewisburg. When it was actually pronounced "Houfnaggle Road." He would then just smile, laugh under his breath and walk on.

He said, "Pence's Springs Water," or when talking about the town, he would say "Pence's Springs." I always assumed he was doing this again just to "ruffle my feathers" because he knew how passionate I have always been about the community.

For the first time in all my years of researching local history, I have seen anything backing up the fact that Granddad wasn't just saying it to "get my goat." My friend Danny Eggleston manages the Facebook group Broken Porch, which refers to his years of cleaning out the old house in Alderson on the Monroe side of the river.

He got into posting a lot of history from this area recently. And made a post showing a May 16, 1900 advertisement for The Hotel Alderson which was also on the Monroe side of the river. Pretty much every small town of any size had a train depot and at least one hotel like this one.

This advertisement lists other small towns in surrounding counties as a "beautiful drive" to the following areas. I find it very interesting that the word "drive" was used when that word is primarily used in regard to automobiles. And at this time horse and buggy was still the primary means of travel.

I digress, it lists Blue Sulphur Springs, Salt Sulphur Springs, Red Sulphur Springs, Wolf Creek Sulphur Springs, and White Sulphur Springs. It also mentioned what is now Pence Springs as "Stock Yards (Pence's) Sulphur Spring. So Granddad didn't just refer to it as "Pence's Springs" to agitate me. It referred to it as "Stockyards" because, at that time, in 1900, that is what the community was called. Andrew Pence didn't win the silver medal at the World's Fair until 1904 with his sulphur water and the name was not changed to Pence Springs until after that to honor him.

So apparently he was already building quite a name for his sulphur water. So much so that people in this region referred to it as "Pence's Water," meaning Andrew Pence's Sulphur Water. And over the years that name just stuck even after it formally became Pence Springs.

I like to imagine that as a child in Talcott, my Grandfather, Bernard, was with his paternal grandparents L.W. and Delia Thompson, and his maternal grandparents in Alderson, Albert and Mary Margret Knapp, who most likely referred to it as "Pence's Water" when they were younger and hearing it so much as a child that it stuck with him for 90 years.

One of Danny's favorite quotes to use on his Broken Porch page is "History is never lost, only found." This is one time that it was found after all these decades of me wondering the origins and the reason for Granddad calling it Pence's Springs.

The old photo you see of Pence Springs is probably the most famous photo of it ever taken. It is during the last part of the Victorian era. The late Ashby Berkley used it to have this painting made from it that hung in the Pence Springs Hotel lobby while he operated it after restoring it from its days as the West Virginia State Prison for Women.

Galentine's Day at Club Carnegie Scheduled for Feb. 13

LEWISBURG W.Va. (Hinton News) - Carnegie Hall invites women to grab their "gal" friends to attend Galentine's Day at Club Carnegie on Thursday, Feb. 13, from 5:30 to 7 p.m. This event on the Hamilton Auditorium Stage is for celebrating women's friendships - Valentine's Day with "gal" friends.

Galentine's Day at Club Carnegie will feature jewelry making with Connie Gottshall, music by John Maddy, chocolates by Aggie's, snacks, and a cash bar. Trunk Shows by Wolf Creek Gallery and Aggie's will also be set up.

Participants will make a beautiful bracelet, selecting from a wide variety of quality, artisan made beads to create a custom bracelet. Artist Connie Gottshall, who has been making and selling jewelry since 2007, will offer guidance and suggestions to help build a breathtaking piece to enjoy for years to come. All materials will be provided.

"It is our hope that this gathering will enhance member growth and develop into a series of activities/entertainment targeted to the 25 to 45 demographic," explains Carnegie Hall Development Director Sally Bray. "We are excited to kick-off this endeavor with a jewelry making party led by Connie! Her workshops are so much fun."

Pianist John Maddy has performed everything from intimate solo piano performances to band and orchestra performances in various states. He brings originals, along with jazz and classical favorites with the right amount of pop/rock to please everyone. He keeps the audience on their toes with his own unique way of blending musical styles.

Carnegie Hall's gallery

exhibitions will also be open during the event. Current artists include Newman Jackson (Lobby Gallery/Board Room), Suzan Morgan (Old Stone Room), and a Carl Frederick Gaetner Retrospective (Museum Gallery).

Tickets for the event are $30 per person and reservations are required. Attendees must be 21 years of age. For tickets or for more information, please visit carnegiehallwv.org, call (304) 645-7917, or stop by the Hall at 611 Church Street, Lewisburg, WV.

Carnegie Hall programs are presented with financial assistance through a grant from the West Virginia Department of Arts, Culture and History and the National Endowment for the Arts, with approval from the West Virginia Commission on the Arts.

Changing the Standard

By Jeremy Paschall

As the orchestra was about to begin their rehearsal, the conductor summoned their attention:

"Please get out your pencils. We have some marking to do on this particular piece. The first two measures are in a 3-4 time signature, not 4-4 as written. Next, in the 5th measure, change it to a 7-8 time signature, and this remains in effect until the end. Now, in measure number 7 we will lower the pitch 1/2 step. In measure number 13, lower the pitch one whole step, and this will remain to the end. Okay? Now, let's begin."

The soprano soloist spoke up, "Excuse me, Maestro. What would you like for me to change?"

"Nothing, madam," the conductor replied with the slightest hint of sarcasm. "Just sing it exactly as you did yesterday."

When a musician varies from the written music, there are two options that allow the performer and the music to be reconciled. Either the musician must alter his or her performance to accurately reflect the musical composition, or (as in the above story) the music must be rewritten to accommodate the performance (i.e. errors) of the musician.

Essentially the same is true in every other area of life. When one deviates from a standard, either he or she can alter their conduct to comply with the given standard or the standard can be manipulated to justify the otherwise unjustifiable conduct.

Certainly we can see the spiritual application. The Word of God is our standard. When we find ourselves or someone else thinking, speaking, or acting in a way that is contrary to the standard, what should we do? Should we correct the error and be reconciled to the standard, or should we attempt to change the standard so that the conduct is no longer condemned? What if someone is teaching that which is not in harmony with the standard, God's Word? Do we hold firmly to the standard and require them to comply, or do we attempt to change or allow them to change the standard?

Here's the real question — are we going to trust human beings to set the standard or are we going to rely on the Word of the Lord?

"All flesh is like grass, and all its glory like the flower of grass. The grass withers, and the flower falls off, but the word of the Lord endures forever" (1 Peter 1.24-25)

"All have sinned and fall short of the glory of God." (Romans 3.23)

Human beings are frail mortals with the distinct capacity for failure. God is eternally infallible, and His Word is complete and perfect (2 Timothy 3.16-17; 2 Peter 1.3). It does not need altering, updating, or modification (Deuteronomy 4.2; 12.32; Proverbs 30.6; 2 John 9-11; Revelation 22.18-19). It will stand as it is — the perfect standard to judge all of mankind (John 12.48).

There is really no choice at all — the standard cannot be changed! Any feeble effort to do so will meet with the wrath of the standard's Author, Almighty God. Altering the scales won't fix our weight problems, breaking the mirror won't change the way we look, and changing (or ignoring) God's Word won't make our sinful behavior acceptable. Our only option is to comply and to insist that those who teach us do the same!

(Next week, we will begin a series on Calvinism which is a perfect example of how some have tried to change the standard resulting in a world of denominationalism.)

MOON ALERT: There are no restrictions to shopping or important decisions today. The New Moon peaks in Aquarius at 7:36 a.m. EST today (4:36 a.m. PST).

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Wednesday, Jan. 29, 2025:

You are quick-witted, empathetic and inspirational to others. You feel passionate about social causes. Lucky you! This is your year to socialize and enjoy life! Nurture the happiness and beauty you have within yourself. Let your guard down and loosen up a bit! Old friends might reappear.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

5★ This is a wonderful day to enjoy the company of others. Interactions with clubs and organizations will be positive. Because you're in a great frame of mind, take some time today to think about your future goals. What do you want to achieve this year? Tonight: Friendships.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

5★ You make a fabulous impression on others today, which is why you can do something to advance your cause. Demand the advantage in anything that you want to do, especially if you need approval from authority figures. "More porridge?" Tonight: Financial discussions.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

5★ Do something to satisfy your urge for exploration. You need a change of scenery! Go someplace you've never been before. Explore your own city. At the very least, visit a new restaurant, shop, park or visit a museum. Shake things up a little! Tonight: Explore!

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

4★ This is an excellent day to negotiate inheritances, shared property or financial disputes. You'll come out smelling like a rose. Figure out how to use today to your advantage in all your negotiations with others. It's a great day to ask for a loan or a mortgage. Tonight: Check expenses.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

4★ Enjoy schmoozing today. For starters, most people feel happy and energetic. In fact, today's New Moon is the perfect day to think about what you can do to improve your closest relationships. Getting along with those who are close to you makes your life easier. Tonight: Listen.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

5★ You couldn't pick a better day to do something to improve your job, your health or anything to do with a pet. Ask for a raise. Look for a better job. Or perhaps ask for better duties. You also might see ways to improve your health, because you're cooking on all six burners today. Go get 'em, Tiger! Tonight: Work.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

5★ This is the perfect day to play hooky. Basically, you want to do anything that is entertaining and gives you pleasure. Enjoy sports events, fun activities with children, meeting a friend for lunch or coffee. Grab a matinee. Think of ways that you can improve your future through pleasurable diversions. Tonight: Socialize!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

5★ The New Moon today is the perfect time to think about what you can do to improve your home, as well as what you can do to improve your relations with family members. Because this is one of the loveliest New Moons of the year, relations with family members can be positive. Tonight: Relax.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

5★ Optimism and freedom of action are survival issues for you. You can sense this today because you're in a positive frame of mind and up for anything! Enjoy schmoozing with others. Decide to learn something new. What can you do to expand your everyday world in a positive way? Tonight: Learn.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan 19)

5★ All things financial will favor you today. That's why this is an excellent day to negotiate with others. You might see ways to boost your income or explore moneymaking ideas. You might buy something for yourself that pleases you. Whatever happens, you will benefit! Tonight: Check your belongings.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

5★ Today it's a New Moon in Aquarius! Furthermore, this combination in-

Dear Recycle Lady

Dear Recycle Lady,

Are there any plastics that are compostable? Composter

Dear Composter,

The only plastic that might be compostable is #7 plastic, but it is not suitable for home composting. Number seven plastics require a modern, commercial composting facility for composting and there are very few of these facilities. As you know, the number in the triangular symbol tells the type of chemicals that makes up a particular plastic and #7 plastics are made up of all the chemicals that don't fit in one of the other six categories. This makes composting difficult and recycling impossible.

Dear Recycle Lady,

What is a water footprint? Necessary for Life

Dear Necessary for Life,

Your water footprint is based on your use of water inside and outside your home. Your direct water use footprint is the water from the tap that you use when you shower, brush your teeth, or wash your hands. It is also the water from the hose outside. The water calculator at www.watercalculator.org can be used to determine your water footprint. You may be surprised at how many gallons of water you and your household use in a day. It will also give you the average U.S. gallons of water used per day for the size of your household. However, a water footprint also includes water use that you don't see that occurs in the production of goods that you buy. According to freetheocean.com, a water footprint is the total amount of water used to produce a product or support an activity. For example, it takes three times as much water to make a plastic bottle as the amount of water contained in the bottle; 713 gallons of water to grow the cotton one everyday cotton T-shirt and approximately 37 gallons of water to grow and process the number of beans needed for a single cup of coffee. Individuals, businesses, and countries can all use the water footprint to understand how they can help the environment by using less water. There are several different descriptive terms used for water. Surface water and groundwater are called blue water, rainwater is called green water, and water used to generate the wastewater used in making manufacturing safe for reuse is grey water.

Dear Recycle Lady,

Help! This morning my mailbox was again full of catalogs that I do not want. I know they can be recycled, but is there a way to stop them from coming? No More Magazines

Dear No More Magazines,

You are correct. Catalogs can be recycled, but reducing the number of catalogs printed is definitely the better choice for the environment. Fortunately, there is a way to opt out of receiving unwanted catalogs. Catalog Choice is a non-profit organization working to stop junk mail by discontinuing the delivery of unwanted magazines. The website is: <http://www.catalogchoice.org>. It may take a month or two, but you will no longer receive the listed catalogs. I have opted out of several catalogs using Catalog Choice. It is a very simple procedure. According to oceanfutures.org, over 100 million trees, 28 billion gallons of water, and enough energy to power more than 9 million cars is used every year to produce junk mail. There is still a need for a non-profit organization to take over the Trex plastic film recycling project. Trex offers a large sustainable bench in exchange for 1,000 pounds of plastic film. While that sounds like a lot of pounds, with the strong support of this community, organizations have completed the collection in three to four months. Please contact Dear Recycle Lady for more specifics or text me at 304-667-1434.

Dear Recycle Lady,

Have questions about recycling, or interesting information about recycling? Send questions or requests to Recyclelady7@gmail.com. Dear Recycle Lady is sponsored jointly by the Greenbrier Recycling Center and Greenworks Recycling.

Concord University's Last Dollar CU Free Program Offers A Tuition Free College Education To West Virginia Students

ATHENS, W.Va. (Hinton News) – Concord University began offering West Virginia residents five years ago a creative financial aid tool for incoming freshmen, current as well as transfer students – last dollar financial assistance through its Concord University (CU) Free program. CU Free allows qualifying students to obtain a four-year degree without paying money out-of-pocket for tuition.

“If you are eligible for Pell grants, you are eligible for a free education at Concord University,” said Tammy Brown, Chief Enrollment Management Officer. Established in the Fall of 2019, CU Free has awarded up to $4,255 per year depending on the students’ other financial aid to 88 qualifying students in all majors. Thus far, 37 students receiving CU Free support have graduated and are in the workforce.

“Concord University is already very affordable, but the CU Free program ensures that every individual seeking a higher education can access it here,” said Brown. “The CU Free program also allows community college students who enjoyed the West Virginia Invests Grant at a two-year institution to continue their education with no tuition cost.”

Incoming freshman, current students and transfer students who meet the criteria are eligible for the CU FREE program.

Qualifying students MUST

- Be Pell grant eligible

- Be a West Virginia resident eligible for WV Higher Education Grant

- Have a Grade Point Average (GPA) of at least 3.0, if an incoming freshman

- Have a GPA of at least 2.75, if a transfer student

- Have filed their FAFSA before April 15

- Be enrolled full-time (at least 12 credits a semester) at Concord University.

This is a last dollar in after all federal, state, institutional, and outside resources have been applied, for base tuition only.

CU FREE will renew for four continuous years (or eight semesters) for first time, first year students. Transfer students can renew up to eight semesters depending on the credits transferred into Concord. Eligible students must also:

- Remain continuously enrolled

- Remain enrolled full-time

- Remain Pell Grant

and WV Higher Education Grant eligible

- Complete the FAFSA each year by April 15

- Maintain a cumulative 2.0 GPA

- Earn at least 24 credit hours each year

- Meet satisfactory academic progress.

National News Literacy Week encourages teens to develop healthy online habits

WASHINGTON, D.C., (Hinton News) — The sixth annual National News Literacy Week, Feb. 3-7, will put a spotlight on the urgent need to teach students how to find credible information. The week encourages educators to teach critical thinking skills, so students learn to recognize standards-based journalism, and know what information and sources to trust.

Teens are living in the most complex information landscape in history and are struggling to separate fact from fiction online and in their social media feeds, according to a recent study by the News Literacy Project. It found that most teens who encounter conspiracy theories online are inclined to believe them (81%). Few could tell the difference between sponsored content, opinion journalism and paid ads. Meanwhile, teens overwhelmingly reported wanting to learn media literacy in school, which the study found was associated with healthy online habits like fact-checking a social media post before sharing.

“Teaching young people to be news-literate empowers them to confidently navigate our information-saturated world,” said Charles Salter, President and CEO of the News Literacy Project. “At a time when students are spending hours each day consuming social media and other information, often through their phones, it’s imperative that young people learn how they are being influenced so they can make informed decisions about their lives.”

National News Literacy Week is co-sponsored by the News Literacy Project, a national nonpartisan education nonprofit and the nation’s leading provider of news literacy resources; The E.W. Scripps Company, a diversified media company and one of the nation’s largest local TV news organizations; and USA TODAY, owned by Gannett, whose expansive reach at the national and local level is dedicated to empowering and enriching communities.

Scripps was a co-founder of National News Literacy Week. Gannett joined this year as a presenting partner.

“Today’s bewildering information and content landscape requires careful navigation in order for Americans to be thoughtful news consumers,” said Scripps President and CEO Adam Symson.

“Scripps, its nationwide group of local news stations and our national news outlet Scripps News are proud to help in the effort to educate and equip young people with the skills they need to sift through the barrage and create well-informed opinions.”

“Now more than ever, education around news and sources of trusted information is paramount. We are proud to be part of the mission to improve news literacy,” said Karey Van Hall, deputy editor in chief of USA TODAY.

About the News Literacy Project

Founded in 2008, the News Literacy Project (NLP) is a nonpartisan education nonprofit that works with educators, school districts and states to ensure students receive news literacy instruction before they graduate high school, giving them the knowledge and ability to think for themselves and become well-informed, critical thinkers active in civic society. About The E.W. Scripps Company

The E.W. Scripps Company (NASDAQ: SSP) is a diversified media company focused on creating a better-informed world. As one of the nation’s largest local TV broadcasters, Scripps serves communities with quality, objective local journalism and operates a portfolio of more than 60 stations in 40+ markets. Scripps reaches households across the U.S. with national news outlets Scripps News and Court TV and popular entertainment brands ION, ION Plus, ION Mystery, Bounce, Grit and Laff. Scripps is the nation’s largest holder of broadcast spectrum. Scripps is the longtime steward of the Scripps National Spelling Bee. Founded in 1878, Scripps’ long-time motto is: “Give light and the people will find their own way.”

About USA TODAY Since its introduction in 1982, USA TODAY has been a cornerstone of the national media landscape under its recognizable and respected brand. It also serves as the foundation for our newsroom network which allows for content sharing capabilities across our local and national markets. Through USA TODAY, we deliver high-quality, trusted content with a commitment to balanced, unbiased journalism, where and when consumers want to engage. Across our digital platforms we reach an audience of approximately 79 million unique visitors each month (based on December 2023 Comscore Media Matrix®).

Musings From Memory Lane: A New Year Always Means Melancholy to Me

Lisa Abshire

I vividly remember the first time I had to deal with one decade turning into another. It was New Year’s Eve 1979. Suddenly, 10-year-old me was struck by what I now know to be melancholy. I had no idea what it meant to have an entire decade fade into seeming oblivion.

I still have a notebook where I wrote over and over how much I loved the 70s and would miss them on that New Year’s Eve night in 1979. What would a new one bring? Would everything suddenly be different? Feel different? I didn’t know what to make of it when midnight passed and absolutely nothing felt different.

The 80s ended up being one of the greatest times of my life. The music, hair and clothes are still among my favorite things. Not to mention the memories. It’s really no surprise to me that as I’ve gotten older all of January has become a very melancholy month. My Dad always used to talk about how it seemed so long after the excitement of the previous holiday months. I definitely understand that now.

January brings the cold and snow of hardcore winter and with it, the opportunity to dwell on the old days seems to settle in. I believe it says I’m here to stay awhile, might as well make peace with me. So I let my mind wander to those winters of long ago when I was a little girl. My mom, outside making a snowman so I could watch from the living room window because I was sick. She later ended up with bronchitis really bad. My dad driving around taking snow pictures just far enough off the beaten path so it would hopefully look like we were way back in the woods.
